DESCRIPTION

The suit is manufactured from high quality Gore-Tex® Taslan material which is light weight but still robust. The crotch, knees and elbows have an additional layer of protective material to extend the lifetime of the suit. The neck seal and wrist seals are made of elastic neoprene which makes the use more comfortable. The neoprene is also warmer than i.e. latex in colder weather. The suit is completely wind and water tight and keeps you dry and high afloat if you happen to fall into the water.

Gemino Action is the ultimate two-piece suit for predator fishing, but it is also a great suit for paddling or sailing. It has a big attached hood that gives you the possibility to wear a hat or a cap underneath. The hood can be adjusted to fit perfectly by tightening or loosening four tensioners. The fleece-lining in the front of the collar/hood gives the user a comfortable feeling. The suspenders are designed in a way so you can remove the pants without removing the top. The two-piece function makes it possible to wear the jacket and the trousers separately or you can attach them to get a dry suit.

The pockets on the jacket are big and have splash proof zippers. The location of the pockets makes them easy to use even when wearing a life jacket. The Jacket is also equipped with three attached D-rings, one in the neck and two down on the back side. The D-ring in the neck can be used to hang the net from and the two others can be used to hang other equipment from. The pockets on the trousers are located on the front side of the thighs. The trousers are equipped with splash a guard that protects the socks and can be pulled on top of rubber boots or normal boots.

The suit is delivered in a black suit bag including the suit, 3mm neoprene gloves, hat and user's manual.
